

Bianca Wemhoff

Bianca Wemhoff is a painter who often incorporates thread to her paintings to expand on the fluidness and similarities other material have with paint, while also playing with texture and the expectations of traditional oil paintings. Interested in how different renderings mix once placed on the same surface, she works with blocked-colored backgrounds behind a stylized central figure who has been altered in some way through the use of thread and the manipulation of the canvas itself. Her goal is to add a contemporary and whimsical approach to a traditional self-portrait, with each piece wildly different than the last.
